In earlier work, we demonstrated an augmented “magic book” built on an Ethnobotany Workbook developed at University of Nebraska Medical Center [1]. A new version of this software will work on smartphones and tablets, and can include multilingual audio. This simple AR technology is becoming easy to use, and may have many possible applications.